

Robo calls canvassing Congressional District paint false picture

Washington DC- Congressman Dan Lungren (R-CA) after returning from a recent trip to Sacramento was amazed at the lengths special interest groups - like Accountable America (AA) - will go to sell a government takeover of health care.

"To distort my record is one thing but to make it seem as if we don't take the opinions of the public seriously is above the pale. This sort of behavior is deceptive and completely unacceptable. My staff and I make every effort to reach out to my constituents to hear their concerns. Whether it's a phone call, written letter, email, tele-townhall or a comment on my Facebook page, my door is always open to hear the concerns of my district," Lungren said.

Accountable America called residents of the 3rd Congressional District distorting Lungren's views on health care reform. In addition, AA played political games by dropping the phone calls of constituents after connecting them to Lungren's district office. This gave the impression his staff was hanging up in the middle of the conversation.
